

Drexler is a Psychology and Social Science undergraduate at the Illinois Institute of Technology. His research interest include the stigma of mental illness, and race and gender discrimination, prejudice and stereotyping. More specifically, he is interested in the dynamics of intra-group discrimination and prejudice.